Europe scolds Trump on Iran, Jerusalem in Tillerson meeting

BLOOMBERG

A JOINT PRESS conference by the European Union's foreign-policy chief and the US secretary of state descended into a thinly veiled exchange of rebukes, adding to signs of increased strain in the world's most powerful alliance.

"The Iran nuclear deal is a key strategic priority for European security but also for regional and global security," the EU's Federica Mogherini told reporters on Tuesday, emphasising that the agreement only dealt with nuclear issues. "Dismantling an agreement on nuclear issues that is working – as the International Energy Agency has certified nine times – would not put us in a the plug out of the Iran nuclear deal, which has drawn sharp criticism from sion, saying that scrapping the accord would endanger stability in the wider region.

"Iran is carrying out a number of destabilising actions in the region and we've seen this recently with ballistic missiles being fired from Yemen, which is our belief are sourced from Iran," US secretary of state Rex Tillerson said after Mogherini's comments.

Even though the EU says that any such concerns shouldn't lead to the dismantling of the nuclear accord, Tillerson said that "these issues and activities of Iran cannot be ignored and cannot go unanswered and we intend to continue to take action to ensure Iran understands this."

The latest episode in the saga is over the possibility that the US might unilaterally recognise Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.

"A way must be found, through negotiations, to resolve the status of Jerusalem as the future capital of both states," Mogherini said in her joint press statement with Tillerson. "We believe that any action that would undermine this effort must absolutely be avoided."
